From "CAMBRIDGE," illustrated by W. Matthison (A. & C. Black).

Pembroke College was founded in 1347 by Marie, daughter of Guy de Chatillon, and derives its name from Aymer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke. Most of the buildings have been re-erected and now extend for a considerable distance along the south side of Pembroke Street. The Chapel in the First Court was put up by Matthew Wren, Bishop of Ely and Master of Peterhouse, the architect being his nephew, Christopher Wren.
